F. GARNER RANNEY ARCHIVES

Who We Are

Unlike many organizations and offices within the diocese, the Archives has a Diocesan Canon governing its operation. We are mandated to “preserve and store publications, documents, correspondence and other items relating to the history of the diocese’s mission and ministry.”

The F. Garner Ranney Archives keeps and tells the story of our faith by preserving our heritage, insuring that our history and legacy remain available to all.

The official repository of records generated by the diocese, as well as keeper of thousands of other historical documents, the Archives shines light on the past, so that our present and future pursuits may be illumined. But maintaining the past is not enough; the future requires that we employ technology which will insure our legacy as we go forward. All contributions to the F. Garner Ranney Archives Fund are used solely for the benefit of the Archives. It is only through generous friends that the Diocesan Archives continues to flourish and exercise this ministry of stewardship.
