TRUTH AND RECONCILIATION COMMISSION

Who We Are

Since 2011 the Diocese of Maryland’s Truth and Reconciliation Commission has been instrumental in providing opportunities for thoughtful engagement of the often difficult topic of race. Opportunities include workshops, guest speakers, and special programs.

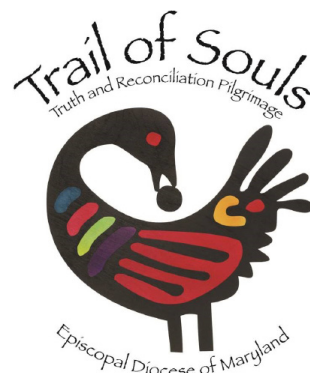

To date, over five hundred people in the diocese have completed the Episcopal Church’s approved methodology Seeing the Face of God in Each Antiracism

Workshop. Participants have been enlightened and then inspired to proactively work toward eliminating the sin of racism. The current climate in our country is sensitive to racial injustice and therefore it is important for followers of Jesus to be informed and equipped to make a difference. A subgroup of this commission recently completed a twelve part thematic based curriculum that ties persons in the Bible to African Americans. In May a forum featuring Bishop Sutton and Lt. Colonel Melvin Russel – “Building Bridges – Connecting Police, Church and Community” was held in Baltimore.

Your contribution will assure the continuation and expansion of opportunities for us to do what we can in our generation to bring about racial justice.
